

Northwest Airlines

international airline

Keewaydin assists NWA on selected real estate projects when they need a consultative, advisory partner to complement their internal real estate department. In the past year, we have worked with them to identify the appropriate site for an additional national facility in a non-Minneapolis confidential location. In addition, Keewaydin completed a strategic real estate decisions project related to a major facility in Tampa, FL.

As a large company with multiple facilities throughout the US, Northwest Airlines needed Keewaydin to be an independent, strategic advisory partner to assist in making non-routine decisions concerning major real estate issues.

In both instances, Keewaydin worked independently to research business issues and real estate markets in the appropriate cities, prepare financial analyses for all possible alternatives, and present NWA with the information and advice needed in order to make an informed real estate decision. Our recommendations on disposition strategies have uncovered unique opportunities and less obvious solutions for NWA.
